

Thanking workers for their efforts

Five-year-old Alexandra Grace Munther "high-fives" FairPrice Xtra employee Jason Lai, 32, after giving him flowers and a hand-drawn postcard at the Nex outlet. As part of a Labour Day initiative focusing on building gratitude in young children, 12 kindergarten pupils from My First Skool at Braddell Heights Community Hub distributed thank-you cards, flowers and chocolates to workers in the Serangoon neighbourhood last Thursday. A week before, the children had been taught about the importance and significance of Labour Day, and how it originated. Besides the supermarket at Nex, the children also visited NTUC Health Senior Day Care (Serangoon Central), NTUC Health Rehab and Physiotherapy (Serangoon Central) and the Serangoon Bus Interchange.
